PLANTS

Plants as listed in this catalog are little dahlia plants grown from cuttings. The cuttings are taken from selected roots or clumps which were started earlier in the greenhouse. When rooted the cuttings are planted into 3x3" dirt bands, and carefully grown until established and then moved outside to cold frames for proper hardening off. Plants are not only less expensive than roots, but will usually produce earlier and better blooms than dahlias planted from roots. Plants will however not always have large clumps for the following season, but when properly grown most varieties will produce nice clumps.

ROOTS

Dahlia roots are divisions of fieldgrown clumps of dahlias. Each root must have a portion of the old crown attached on which there is one eye or sprout. Should the root have more than one eye or sprout it is adviseable that the extra eyes are cut out.

We have roots for sale of most of the standard varieties listed, at twice the price of plants.

ROOTED CUTTINGS

We will furnish high grade well rooted cuttings of varieties listed at prices one-third less than the list of plants.

ABBREVIATIONS

The letters immediately following the name of each variety (except as to certain new varieties) indicate its classification as jointly adapted by the Central States Dahlia Society and the American Dahlia Society and are all subject to their revision.
